JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION SITE IS SOLD FOR $235,000

Norfolk, a., May FI.—THE Jamestown Exposition site on Hampton Roads, which on October 31, 1911, was sold for 517,000, with failure of confirmation by the court, today was resold at 1235,000, the purchaser being the Pidelity Land and Investment Company, headed by former Congressman H. L. Maynard as president. The mechanics lien hoiders who bought the property in October 11d again to-day. They were represented here by T. H. Hanley, of Chicago, and R. C. Streefflow, of Omaha, Neb.

Federal Judga Waddill to-day directed the receivers of the Jamestown Exposition Company to accept from delinquent Jamestown stock subscribers' companies at 50 conts on the dollar, such componies offers to be in by July 1.

Benedletine Plays High School.
Benedletine College and High School will engage in the deciding game of baseball at Byrd Park to-morrow. Each team defeated the other once and one game was a tie. It will be a great game. The Benedletine team will disband after this game, as their schedule has been played, winning eight games, losing three and tying two; a good record for the first year of the school's history. They expect a great team at Benedletine this-ooming year.

It is said of Mr. Roosevelt that he never attends a funeral without wishing to be the corpse. But of course this is carrying the ambition of playing a first role a little too far; and I only make use of this comparison in order to show that the suspicions directed towards the Kaiser are not of that nature, but that if he thought-lessly goos where he has not been especially invited, it is not to crush anybody by his supreme grandeur, but

Supreme Court Awards

$2,500,000 to Plaintiff

$2,500,000 to Plaintiff

Washington, May 27.—One of the largest Judgments against an individual ever decreed by the Supreme Court was announced to-day against Albert S. Bigclow, of Boston. He will be called upon to pay a judgment of $2,100,000, to-gether with interest, which probably will bring the total to $2,500,000. The victor in the suit is the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company.

Bigclow and Leonard Lewisohn, of New York, promoted the company, and while awning its stock sold to if property at an enormous profit. They then sold their stock to the "innocent public." With the company under the contaol of the "innocent" stockholders, it sued Lewisohn in New. York for the Prodis. The company lost.

Then Bigclow was sued by the company in Massachusetts, and the couris of that State laid down the far-reaching principle that the company in Massachusetts, and the company of that State laid down the far-reaching principle that the company to business the property from them and make Higelow account. Consequently, Bigelow was directed to purchase the property from them and make Higelownecount. Consequently, Bigelow was directed to pay the company $2,100,000.

Corporation lawyers are in a quandary to-night as to the law. The Supreme Court in 1808 affirmed the New York decision, which held the company could not recover, while to-day it likewise affirmed the New York decision, which allowed it to recover.

The decision to-day dealt exclusively with the question whether the Massachusetts courts will be called upon to enforce the Judgment.
